Why study Political Science at Maryville College?

Would you enjoy working on a campaign for elected office? Do you want to learn more about global political issues, first-hand, while talking with local leaders in Africa, Asia and the European community? The Political Science major prepares you for careers in a host of government and non-government, diplomatic, media and legal fields. Working with professors with professional experience in Washington, D.C., and more than two dozen nations around the world, you'll learn about political processes, institutions and the theories guiding governments around the world.

MEET A CURRENT SCOT

Bettye "Maddie" Taylor

Hometown: Memphis, Tenn.

Maddie chose to study Political Science because of her passion for all things political and her belief that government can play a significant role in bettering lives. This belief is evident in her own campus involvement – she is president of the College's Student Government Association. After graduation, she plans to attend law school with a focus on civil rights, with future plans of operating a nonprofit that works closely with the government.

Thanks to MC professors, Political Science is now more than a passion to Maddie.

"They showed me that despite the world viewing politics as the enemy that I could take on politics with an insight that could ultimately change how we view our role and duty to engage with politics," she said.

MEET A RECENT GRAD

Sammy Zeino '21

Currently: J.D. candidate of UCLA School of Law in Los Angeles, Calif.

Through various courses and the writing of his Senior Study, Sammy developed research and writing skills necessary for law school and a career in law. He is considering corporate, immigration and environmental law.

"My experience at MC made me feel prepared to send out meaningful personal statements in my application, and I'm grateful that MC played such a large part in my eventual acceptance at UCLA School of Law," he said. "I have wanted to study law since high school, and that is why I pursued a political science degree at Maryville College."

RELATED OPPORTUNITIES

Maryville College annually sends a team of students to participate in the Tennessee Intercollegiate State Legislature (TISL), a forum for student leaders to exchange ideas, express their opinions and learn how government works. Its four programs are patterned after the essential elements of public service: legislative, AMC3 (the Appellate Moot Court Collegiate Challenge), lobbying and media.
