

PROGRAMS OF STUDY:

- B.A. in Art
- MINOR in Art
- Concentrations in Drawing, Ceramics, Painting, Photography

EXTERNAL RELATIONSHIPS

- Arrowmont School of Art & Crafts
- Blount Memorial Hospital
- Knoxville Museum of Art
- Maryville Housing Authority

GRADUATE SCHOOL PLACEMENTS

- Duke University
- George Washington University
- University of Iowa
- University of Memphis
- University of Michigan
- University of Tennessee-Knoxville

CLAYTON CENTER FOR THE ARTS

The $47-million Clayton Center for the Arts opened in 2010. In addition to serving as the home of the College's Fine Arts Division, it is a gathering place for the community and its visitors where the arts and culture of the region are celebrated. Students studying the visual arts benefit from the Clayton Center's rotating art exhibits and programming.

The facility includes:

- professional galleries
- painting and drawing studio
- ceramics and sculpture studio
- photography studio and darkroom
- graphic design studio
- art computer lab

Why study Art at Maryville College?

The Art major at Maryville College will challenge you with a stimulating program of study that balances individual instruction, cooperative learning and independent research. Internships and “real world” projects such as the creation of public murals and the management of the College's art galleries will help you discern your career path and prepare you for graduate school and the workforce. Alumni of our program are painters, illustrators, freelance photographers, ceramicists and printmakers. Others manage art supply stores, teach art in public schools or at the university level, and work in museums and galleries.

MEET A CURRENT SCOT

Anna Price

Hometown: Walland, Tennessee

Attending Maryville College has been a lifelong dream for Anna, who grew up coming to the campus for shows and exhibits at the Clayton Center for the Arts. She says that MC has been “a perfect fit,” being small and close to the mountains. It's fitting, then, that Anna is also involved with Mountain Challenge on campus.

As an Art major with career aspirations to photograph concerts, performers and venues, Anna loves learning the history and techniques of art as well as having encouragement from professors and students. She enjoys having the freedom to “mess up” and better herself while creating what she loves. “It's also amazing to have so many connections outside of my major and the College and combine subjects and topics that I love and make future relationships with employers,” she said.

MEET A RECENT GRAD

Laura Reed '24

After four and half years in the Navy serving as a construction mechanic with the Seabees, Laura began her collegiate journey at Pellissippi State Community College before transferring to MC. She credits MC for preparing her to be flexible and “ride the wave to your path.”

Currently serving as the PAVE Director at MC while pursuing an MBA at Auburn University, Laura says she uses her art degree to create eye-catching posters, flyers and pamphlets to bring awareness to her program and its services, as well as provide training for students, faculty and staff. With her MBA, Laura wants to take her photography business to another level and eventually work with the Department of Defense, Veteran Affairs and other agencies.

FOR MORE INFORMATION:

visit maryvillecollege.edu/art or call 865.981.8092